

BioAcoustic sound therapy has been a godsend to my daughter Adrienne who has experienced debilitating pain episodes for the past two years. Adrienne spent four months in several hospitals this year alone. There was no determination of what was causing her episodes. No medicines offered relief from her symptoms. She suffered week in and week out as she continued to get weaker and weaker. Nothing they had to offer helped.

I recruited BioAcoustic pioneer Sharry Edwards to help identify the cause of her symptoms and develop sounds to address the causes. She did just that. Sharry succeeded in identifying several very rare conditions that were responsible for the episodes. It is the first time we have had any understanding of what has been causing the pain episodes.

This is the first time we have an approach that is helping her heal. Once Adrienne began listening to the tones several weeks ago. Her episodes have become less frequent and less severe. Clearly, healing from the inside out is happening for Adrienne. More time is needed for her body to come back into balance but the early signs of success are a true miracle.
